Four senses of Scripture - Wikipedia
The four senses of Scripture are a four-level method of interpreting the Bible. This method originated in Christianity and was taken up in Judaism by the Kabalah. In Kabalah the six meanings of the biblical texts are literal, allegorical, and mystical. In Christianity, the four senses are literal, allegorical, tropological and anagogical.

Samurai - World History Encyclopedia
Jul 05, 2019 - Development & Status. The government system of conscription in Japan was ended in 792, and so in the following Heian Period (794-1185), private armies were formed in order to protect the landed interests (shoen) of nobles who spent most of their time away at the imperial court. This was the beginning of the samurai, a name meaning 'attendant' while the verb samuru means 'to protect'...

History of Birmingham - Wikipedia
The oldest human artifact found within Birmingham is the Saltley Handaxe: a 500,000-year-old brown quartzite hand axe about 100 millimetres (3.9 in) long, discovered in the gravels of the River Rea at Saltley in 1892. Other parts of Birmingham are quite similar in this way, as people seem to have lived there for millennia. This provided the first evidence of lower paleolithic human presence in Birmingham. No later sites have been found within the city limits.
